

Dear Sir/Madam,

We are writing regarding your genetic databases. In order to ensure global privacy of sensitive genetic information, we are seeking clarification on your data sharing policies.

We welcome the information on the website that states that patient data will not be sold to third parties. We however note from your website that data may be shared with various authorities including law enforcement, or for national security and protective service activities. We seek details of any such requests that may have already been made to the company, specifically by immigration and law enforcement.

We finally request clarification on what protections are in place to prevent access to identifiable genetic (including re-identifiable) information by third parties, including what policies are in place to prevent data breaches by your organisation or third party collaborators.

The information that is provided, or not provided to us, will be shared with the public in order to promote transparency and to inform on the privacy implications of growing genetic databases. We thus thank you for any information that you can share with us to facilitate this process.

Yours sincerely,

Dr [REDACTED]

Policy Officer
